

The purpose of this planning guide is to assist organizational event coordinators. Experience has proven that organizational events allow for unit morale building and is an excellent means to introduce military personnel to the sport of golf. Many first time participants gain sufficient interest to continue with the sport.

Golf courses have unique operational and maintenance requirements associated with facility use by persons of different skill levels. Those "first timers" or beginners could easily impose upon other golfers without being aware of it. To allow for maximum activity utilization and help prevent costly or irreparable damage, there are some requirements we ask you to consider prior to requesting approval for organizational golf tournaments.

- Tournaments are not routinely approved during periods of peak use (weekends and holidays). Rheinblick Golf Course has reserved most Fridays for ID cardholder events, whether military or civilian.
- Tournaments may not be used to raise funds for units or charities without approval of the Commander of USAG Wiesbaden.
- All food and beverages must be purchased on-site. "Bring your own" is not permitted.
- Tournament participation with less than 40 players does not warrant closure, or partial closure of the golf course, for the event. However, groups with less than 40 players are still welcome and will be sent out by tee times or management's discretion.
- Event coordinators must accept responsibility for ensuring that those new to golf are aware of basic golf etiquette. This includes replacing divots, repairing ball marks, keeping carts away from tees and greens, etc. To aid in providing this necessary information to participants, the coordinator or golf course staff will provide a briefing for all participants prior to teeing off. Please allow time for this briefing when planning the start time of your event.
- The Rheinblick Golf Course dress code requires proper (spikeless) golf shoes or sneakers. Bare feet, sandals, and boots are inappropriate. Shirts with collars are preferred. Undergarment t-shirts are not acceptable. Shirtless is unacceptable. Tank tops, sleeveless, mesh, halter tops, and swim suit tops are unacceptable. Trousers and shorts should be hemmed, no cut-offs.
